Are you Taking Care of Business?

Taking Care of Business is a major event taking place on June 29th 2011 in the Newpark Hotel, Kilkenny, with a view to helping small business owners and managers understand how effective management of worker health and safety can benefit the bottom line.

Attendance is FREE.... all that's needed is your time!

By implementing simple and practical measures to protect your workers, learn how you can:

- save your business money,
- reduce the chances of an accident in your workplace, and
- improve staff morale and motivation.

We all agree that the greatest asset of any business is the people who work for it. But what are you doing to ensure that this most valuable of assets is protected at work and meeting their full potential?

The Health and Safety Authority wants to work with small business owners and managers to show how simple and straightforward it can be to minimise the chances of a workplace accident. Fewer accidents mean increased profits.

Come along to this free event and find out everything you need to know about workplace health and safety. Start adding to your bottom line NOW!

Why Attend?

No business is too small to benefit from effective health and safety management. And no business, regardless of size, is excluded from health and safety legislation. You will learn how effective management of workplace health and safety can reduce workplace accidents and save you money.

- Get “top tips” to help you address some of the most common workplace safety and health hazards.
- Try out our new free online tool, BeSMART, and see how you can easily undertake a risk assessment and prepare a safety statement for your business.
- Health and Safety Authority advisors will be there to talk and listen to you in a confidential environment.

Implementing effective health and safety measures could save your business significant amounts of money. Don't miss out, register your place NOW.
